About TED Ed

The TED-Ed Student Talks program provides a curriculum that supports students in identifying, developing and sharing their ideas in the form of short, TED-style talks. This curriculum is used in over 130 countries by educators.

“ Students develop 21st century skills through curriculum activities.

This program is designed for school students only

The Purpose

We believe there is a multitude of impact when students are asked about what they care about, are working as a group to develop ideas, and are invited to share those ideas in front of a larger audience.

Through the program, students develop the following...

Produce Fresh ideas | Communicate effectively | Present in public

The Outcome

The participating students from classes 7 – 12 can...

- Learn to identify the elements of a great idea
- Think critically about the ideas that they are exposed to.
- Research, develop and craft their own ideas into spoken narratives
- Gain confidence to share their ideas with the community
- Give and receive meaningful feedback on each other's ideas

How it works?

1. Students use TED-Ed's flexible public speaking curriculum as a guide.

2. Students build their own Idea Journals.

3. We'll run a showcase event for the participating students at their own school to present their talks.
